PASADENA BOULEVARD IDEAS.

Features of the Arroyo and Adobe Road Routes.

A large meeting of the Pasadena and Los Angeles Boulevard Committee was held in the rooms of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association yesterday afternoon. The Times' illustrated article published several weeks ago, exhibiting a cross-section of a model boulevard, has met with much favor. The projectors of the Arroyo

Seco route have planned a boulevard 150 feet in width and find enthusiastic advocates for it among a majority of the property-owners along the route who will be most affected if that width is adopted. The proposed boulevard practically follows the route of the present Pasadena avenue electric car line, twenty feet in the center being devoted to the railway, then eight feet on each side for bicycles, then rows of shade trees, then two thirty-foot roadways, then grass plats and finally shaded walks. It will have a very park-like appearance, and it is proposed to make the entire boulevard a part of the park system of the two cities, and that after construction it be placed under the charge of their respective park commissioners.

The Arroyo Committee asked a further extension of time of two weeks to complete the work of securing the signatures of abutting property-owners. According to the present plans, the Arroyo route would nowhere cross stream roads on the grade, but dive under both of them at the Garvanza

The Adobe Road Committee has completed its work and presented an attractive and feasible route. Beginning at Orange Grove avenue the route deflects slightly to the east and proceeds directly south through the center of South Pasadena and along the eastern base of the hills, coming into Los Angeles at East Side Park, and thence by a route surveyed by Mr. Dockweiler to the Placer. The distance from the crossing of Orange Grove avenue and Columbia street to the Los Angeles city limits is one and three city limits. The only highway is about fifteen miles. The grade is little over 2 per cent., and the entire route is susceptible of improvement for residence purposes. At a point about four miles from the Plaza a branch boulevard is contemplated, which will ultimately be extended through Alhambra, Azusa and on to San Bernardino and Redlands.

A CONVENTION BUILDING.
Preparations Necessary for Housing National Gatherings.
A committee of manufacturers, business

A committee of manufacturers was appointed by the board of directors of the Merchants' and Manufacturers' Association to consider plans for the organization of a home-product exhibition, and incidentally the erection of a building which would be suitable not only for such an exhibit, but also for the accommodation of large assemblages like State and national conventions. The committee named by President Frank included: F. W. Braun, J. O. Koepfl, Gilbert T. Gay

It was remarked that now is a good time to agitate the subject of a large public building, as Los Angeles is promised one of the national convention next year. Delegate Nemer, whose appointment to represent the Merchants and Manufacturers' Association was confirmed by the board, will attend the Educational Convention at Milwaukee July 1 to 5 and also the Detroit convention of the Republican Leagues July 13 to 15, and he is expected to help bring at least one of them to Los Angeles in 1899; consequently this is believed to be

The subject of pure milk was discussed by Mr. Burnham, who wants the ordinances regarding the adulterated article better enforced. He thinks the officers of the law need a little prodding. The conclusions of the meeting will be brought to the attention of the proper authorities through a set of resolutions.

AMUSEMENTS TONIGHT.

LOS ANGELES.—Said Pasha.
ORPHEUM.—Vaudeville.

CAUSELESS APPREHENSIONS.

It appears, from an interview had with the German Emperor by the Paris correspondent of the London Times, that the Emperor is very much concerned lest the United States should become too ambitious, and should menace the peace of the world by schemes of territorial aggrandizement. He is quoted as saying that he does not fear Chinese ambition nor the Anarchists, but that he does fear the expansion of "one of the great powers" and the intervention of the United States in the affairs of the Old World.

Commenting upon the Emperor's utterances, the London Spectator remarks that "the Kaiser has displayed at times singular gleams of insight," and adds: "The facts of the moment appear to justify his enigmatic saying. The Americans are exhibiting a tendency to depart from their policy of seclusion and to interfere very strongly in the affairs of the Old World." Continuing, the Spectator refers to the action of our government in reference to Samoa, Venezuela and Hawaii, and says that we are now apparently about to interfere with Spain in the Cuban affair. It then goes on to speculate upon a possible alliance of Germany and Spain against the United States, and declares that "the German and Spanish fleets combined would be more than a match for any fleet America could produce without an effort, which would take the resources of the Union, not in money, but in ships and sailors. The Union," it adds, "is irretrievably only ashore, and Cuba would be a poor reward for a great and dangerous sea war," etc., etc.

All this goes to show how little the German Emperor and the London Spectator understand the spirit which animates the hearts of the American people, controls their actions, and dictates the policies of their government. The German Kaiser and the London publication may dismiss their apprehensions as to any schemes of territorial aggrandizement which they imagine may be entertained by the United States. We have no such schemes. In the sense in which the term is usually and properly understood, we have no desire to interfere in the affairs of the Old World, nor are the American people likely ever to be moved by such a desire. We have enough to do to take care of our interests in the New World, without seeking needless trouble and vexation in the political affairs of Europe.

Both the Kaiser and the London paper appear to be laboring under the delusion that the trouble in Cuba is exclusively a European affair. If they will take a good look at the map, they will ascertain that the geographical location of Cuba is not in the Old World, but in the New World. If they will familiarize themselves with the acts of the case, they will ascertain that while Cuba is nominally under Spanish rule, it is far from being actually so, but has already made great progress toward political independence, through the organization of a government, republican in form, which today holds possession of nearly or quite half of the island. They will also ascertain, upon a careful investigation, that American interests in Cuba are very large; so large, in fact, as to warrant some decisive action on the part of our government having in view the termination of the disastrous war which is now ravaging the island, to the serious detriment of American and all other interests. These considerations render it impossible to regard the Cuban question as purely a European affair, in which we have no call to interfere.

The extent to which the United States will participate in the settlement of the Cuban question must and will be determined in large part by the course of events. Such action as we shall take will be inspired by high and patriotic sentiments or duty and humanity, not by any narrow or mercenary motives. If the annexation of Cuba to the United States should ever be brought about, it will come incidentally or as a necessary sequence, rather than through design. And whatever may be the position which our government may finally assume in this matter, it will be and can be maintained in spite of alliances, protests or possible force on the part of the European powers, individually or collectively. European threats of alliances against the United States serve to furnish amusement for the American people, but their usefulness goes no further.

As regards the case of Samoa, to which the London publication refers, it is not a case in point. We were drawn into a tripartite agreement with England and Germany for a joint protectorate over the islands, but no remote idea of territorial acquisition, or of interference in European affairs was entertained or implied in that agreement. The Venezuelan incident is no more a case in point than that of Samoa. Our position as the friend of the Monroe doctrine, and had nothing to do with European affairs proper. Nor can the pending treaty with reference to Hawaii in any sense be termed an interference in the affairs of Europe. Hawaii is an independent sovereignty. It lies considerably east of the western boundary of United States possessions in Alaska and is some eight thousand miles westerly from Europe. The disposition of the Hawaiian question concerns this country much more closely than it concerns any other nation, and the United States will settle the questions involved, in its own way and time, "without asking the advice or consent of any other nation," as Mr. Bryan is so fond of saying.

Viewing the situation in its entirety, there is no occasion for alarm of the Kaiser, which is echoed and amplified by the London Spectator. The United States can take care of itself, and proposes to do so.

SENATOR SHERMAN ON TRUSTS.

The sterling old statesman and patriot, John Sherman, having been interviewed in New York on the subject of trusts, has this to say:

"The trust people say the effect of their combinations is to lower prices of the products which they control. I do not believe it. The tendency to control the output and put up prices must naturally come with the control of any important industry of trade. When a man makes his money on a fair basis of trade no man envies him, or has a right to. When he makes a fortune with the trusts which shut out competition or restrain trade he is denounced, and this has been done by all peoples and at all times. It is unfair competition and unfair combination that has roused up this cry against trusts."

The people of this country, or at least that great majority of them who are not interested in cornering everything that we are compelled to have to live on, will agree with the great Ohioan and will applaud his remark that we must have laws to correct the defects in the present anti-trust statutes. Secretary Sherman well says that "the matter of trusts is altogether the most important question of the day," and it is a question that the men who are guiding the affairs of the nation must take hold of and adjust in accordance with the laws of right and justice and common sense.

The great corporations must not be permitted to combine to throttle commerce, to corner bread and oil and water and light, and to build up a great class of plutocrats at the expense of the small tradesman and the consumer.

The American Congressman who formulates a law that will effectively stamp out these monsters that are threatening the land will earn as great a meed of glory as did Lincoln when he wrote the proclamation of emancipation, or as did Grant at Donelson and Vicksburg and Appomattox.

The strength of the United States is in the great, brave, noble common people—the people who won the country's battles when there was hard fighting to be done; that have made the republic great and powerful and exalted among the nations of the earth; and that must be depended upon to step into the breach when foes assail the flag again. The trusts will not do our fighting, but their millions will flee to hide in places at the first scent of danger, for capital is the most craven of things. Therefore it is the people who must have their interests guarded against the encroachments of monopoly, that the land may grow greater in manhood and the power that comes from the patriotic hearts of brave and loyal men.

The trusts must be made to know that there is a dead line beyond which they shall not cross save at the peril of their existence.

The State Printer of Kansas has abolished the linotype in the State Printing Office and gone back to hand composition. He should now be consistent by abolishing the modern press, going back to the old man-power lever machine, that worked hard enough to kill a horse, making the type with a swab. We may next expect to hear from Kansas that in obedience to the trades-union and Populist edicts, railways have been abolished, that the use of reapers, mowers and sewing machines has been declared a criminal offense, and that instead of having letters delivered by carriers in Topeka, everybody will have to line up at the postoffice, as in the good old days, in order to get his mail. The electric telegraph has got to go, in Kansas, and the modern cook stove must make way for the fire-place and the dutch oven. Nothing but soft soap shall be used by such of the inhabitants as indulge in the practice of washing themselves, and the flail shall take the place of the thrashing machine. Kansas is the spot Mr. Debs is looking for. Not Washington!

Our Turkish neighbors continue to occupy strategic points, and are strengthening their position all along the line in Thessaly. The recent war, small as it was, has given the Mohammedans such courage as to make the sick man of Europe believe, apparently, that in the concert of the powers his voice will be heard with a rather more strident and insistent tone than it has for a long time. The vitality of the Turk is wonderful when one comes to think of how he has appeared to us in the past. We have looked upon him and his nation as decadent and in dotage, but here he comes up strong, virile and active with a hundred good fights in him, and prepared only to resist the invasion of its territory, but ready to become the aggressor, if it needs be. It really looks as if the Turkish nation had somewhere or other discovered the recipe for the elixir of life.

A Chicago doctor has made the horrifying discovery that all kinds of fruit, with the exception of preserved prunes, is about the most harmful fact that the human stomach can grapple with. We are glad with riotous joy that doc. has left us prunes, for we all recall the many able articles that appeared in The Times about a year ago showing that prunes were the greatest preventive of crime known to exist, and we would feel grieved, indeed, to have the physis sharp of Chicago dead set against the great American crime eradicator. We refrain from saying that this Chicago doctor writes like a man who is full of prunes, but he probably is, just the same.

Santa Cruz is having trouble as well as pebbles on its beach. The City Council of the gleeful seaport where the maidens of the metropolis disport themselves in the briny has passed an ordinance prohibiting the erection of tents and other forms of shelter on the skirting sands along the water front, and there is going up a war from the inhabitants of the sandy strip, that muffles the roar of the breakers. Meanwhile, the water continues quite warm, and the Councilmen stand fast. The subject, which concerns Santa Cruz more than the annexation of the Sandwich Islands, promises to keep the weather considerably all summer long.

The American bicycle is wheeling its way so rapidly into the good graces and favor of riders in Germany that the native manufacturer is clamoring for a protection to home industry. It appears that the American wheel and the American hog are rapidly becoming persons not grate in concert, to some, in the land of the Gottederung, but both these products of ours have fine points that will serve to compel their acceptance, despite the complaining of the makers of wheels that ride like ice wagons and the grovers of hogs who are squealing like pigs under a gate.

It is now announced that Weyer will require 60,000 more troops, at least, to conquer the eastern provinces of Cuba and hold them for Spain. And yet Weyer recently announced that the greater part of Cuba was "pacified." Weyer's ideas as to what constitutes pacification are decidedly queer.

Chicago has had forty suicides in the month of June, and there are still two more days to go. Much in the way of excuse can be found for the man who takes this summary method of escaping the rigors of the Chicago climate, especially in summer. But it is worse in winter.

According to a directory published in Chicago, it would appear that the Windy City has 450 lawyers, an increase of 225 in the past year. This means that there are lots of folks in Chicago who go around "makin' drubbles among der beepies," as Fritz Emmett used to say.

Mr. Luetgert, the eminent Chicago sausage-maker, who boiled his wife, has finally been tried for trial. It is gratifying to know that roasting is to be retained as the only proper method for disposing of a Chicago wife—except divorce. Boiling emphatically does not go.

England is greatly rejoiced at the discovery that the Queen is not a figure-head. It must be conceded that her figure is not so great, but Victoria has a level head, and The Times has always said as much. No Englishman can claim a scoop on us upon that point.

which could bring them only distress and disaster. What will be the nature of Debs's next bunco game?

Five hundred men, it is stated, are to be dismissed from the Chicago police force for no other reason than that they are Republicans. Truly, this is Democratic "reform" with the largest kind of an R. When the official roster in the Windy City has been thoroughly "reorganized" Mayor Harrison may be expected to put it upon a strictly civil service-reform basis.

It is estimated that the cost of the Queen's jubilee will be not less than $100,000,000. This is a very large sum of money, and its expenditure has resulted in a grand and impressive display. But one cannot help thinking how very few $100,000,000 would have gone toward relieving the distress of the Queen's famine-and-plague-stricken subjects in India.

Mr. Debs and the other social Democrats who are doing the riding while the other fellows do the work, have commenced operations by voting salaries to themselves, as might be expected. The walking delegate never works without pay, and he sees that he gets it. Mr. Debs, as a feather of the Debs nest, is truly a bird.

Will Allen White of the Emporia Gazette declares that prosperity is galloping over the golden fields of Kansas like a drove of buffalo, and that the Popocrats must move off the range or get smashed in the stampede. This is the best news we have heard from Kansas since Mr. Lease weaned the last one of his babies.

An Australian paper—the Melbourne Argus—announces that "Bryan is sure to be elected President of the United States in 1900." It is suspected that the antipodean journal obtained its exclusive information direct from Bryan himself. The information is important if true; and it is indeed news in this quarter of the globe.

Emperor William of Germany is somewhat torn up in his mind about this country is going to do with respect to Cuba, Hawaii and a few other islands, more or less, that are scattered around in the salty drink. If Uncle Sam doesn't ask Willie before he annexes anything, he will be real hateful—so, there!

It is estimated that it will take 100 experts three months to count the cash on hand at the national treasury. The grand total is not far from $800,000,000. Your Uncle Sam may be a trifle hard up now and then, as the result of mismanagement on the part of some of his officials, but he is very far from being insolvent.

Spain has managed to eke out a $40,000,000 loan to meet the expenses of the war in the Philippines by backing the bonds up with a guarantee of the Philippine customs. What it proposes to do when it goes to war with our Uncle Sam one of these days, when it gets real mad, is an invisible substance.

The parade of the Queen's naves at Spithead must have been an inspiring sight, but we have no doubt that, in case of trouble, some American would turn a few torpedoes loose among the iron monsters of the mighty deep and make them look as though they had been sent for and couldn't come.

A Contrary Flag.

[Pittsburgh Dispatch:] If ever there was anything in the world that went by contraries, it is the Chinese flag. It will be recalled that it is one of the gayest of national standards. The body of the banner is of a pale yellow. In the upper left-hand corner is a small red sun, and looking at it is a fierce Chinese dragon. About one thousand years ago, so the story runs, the Chinese made war upon the Japanese. They prepared for a great invasion. As a prophesy of victory they adopted a standard which is that of the present time. They took the sun of Japan and made it very small. This they put in front of the dragon's mouth to express the idea that the Chinese dragon would devour the Japanese. It happened, however, that the Chinese fleet, conveying an army of 100,000 men, was wrecked on its way to Japan by a great storm, and all but three of the 100,000 perished. The result of the recent war has not been any more convincing than the first affair that the Chinese flag has been correctly conceived.

SLY TRICK OF A WIDOW.

She Marries a Bachelor Betrothed to Her Daughter.

[Call:] Widows are proverbially designing. When they set their hearts upon marrying a man there is little hope for his escape, and he might as well surrender at discretion. A story comes from the White Oak region of Kentucky that illustrates this fact. It is an unusual complication too, the widow in the case having her own daughter for a rival. Martha Berry was fair, and 40, but whether fat or not the deacon's saveth not some years ago she lost her husband, but a daughter remained to comfort her and to be comforted. This daughter, Matilda, has just reached the age of 18, and is fair to look upon. In the neighborhood of the Berry domicile lived John Whitely, a prosperous farmer of 30, and a widower. Whitely has been paying attention to Mrs. Berry's daughter for six months, and it was supposed generally they would be married soon. The mother would not give her consent, but she did not object to the young widow's calls. He pleaded with the widow for the hand of her daughter to no purpose, and the young people decided on an elopement.

All the arrangements were made for the elopement, but the watchful mother discovered what was on foot, and on Friday night, the time set for the elopement, she went to her daughter's room shortly after dark, and bound the girl hand and foot. She also tied a gag in her mouth and took her to her own room, and tied her to the bed. She then returned to her daughter's room, and when Whitely came to steal away his love the widow answered the summons, and without speaking a word she joined the young man in the yard. He assisted her into the buggy and drove her to the county seat of Carter county, where he had arranged with Judge Morris to perform the ceremony.

Whitely was surprised at the silence of his companion, but as she leaned confidently on his arm, and appeared to be sobbing all the time, he could do nothing more than console her and cheer her up by telling her that her mother would forgive her. It was not until after the ceremony was performed on the judge's front porch and they repaired to a hotel that the bridegroom saw that he had married the widow. He did not once make the best of the situation. He took his wedded wife home, and to a neighbor he said that although dead in love with Matilda, he always did think a great deal of her handsome mother. A deal of her handsome mother, Matilda, was discovered bound in her mother's room by a neighbor the next morning, and when she learned the truth her mother had played her she said that although she thought she loved Mr. Whitely, she was now satisfied that she did not. She promises to be a dutiful daughter to him.

She Lost Her Fare.

[Chicago Times-Herald:] "Fare, please," said the conductor to the young woman who sat in the car, a picture of woe.

"I can't pay this trip," answered the young woman, faintly.

"Why can't you, ma'am?" in a suspicious tone.

"I have lost my car fare."

"Did you have it when you boarded this car?"

"Yes, but I haven't it now. You can take my address or give me yours, and I'll send it to you, faintly."

"I can't do that," said the man, "it's against the rules. If you lost your fare in this car there is no reason why you should not lose it again. I'll help you look for it."

"No, no," said the woman in a state of wild alarm. "I tell you that it is lost and you will have to trust me to send it to you."

"Very strange," said the conductor, suspiciously. "If you lost it on this car I can see why you are so sure you can't find it again. How did you lose it?"

"I swallowed it," shrieked the young woman, driven to desperation, and the conductor went out on the rear end of the car and cuffed a small boy's ears.

Mr. Huntington Feels Good.

C. P. Huntington was among the millionaires who sailed from New York last week in the ship St. Louis. Talking with a New York Mail and Express reporter, Mr. Huntington said: "I am making this trip for the benefit of the sea voyage. Business is now in good condition, and I feel safe in going away for a rest. I have worked hard this last year. The improvement in business, while gradual, has been marked by steady progress. All the principal properties show increased earnings, and not a few of them are paying 4 per cent. more than last year. I have correspondents all over the United States and Europe. The former send me information that everything is on the upward grade, and that good, solid times are ahead. My English correspondents send me assurance of renewed confidence in American securities. What more can we expect? I am informed that great factories are resuming operations all over this country, and I feel satisfied that we have left bad times behind."

Shirt Bosom Ironing Board. The latest patent in laundry appliances is an improved form of shirt bosom ironing board, which is so constructed that by means of a simple hinged locking device, the garment is held firmly at all points during the ironing process, particular attention being directed to the way the tension is obtained and applied without injuring the fabric.

HIS WORK UNDONE.

FRANKLIN BASFORD'S TROUBLES TOO GREAT FOR HIM.

The Well-known Marine Painter and Yachtsman Killed Himself on Board His Launch—Someone Had Tampered With His Inventions.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS WIRE.]

NEW YORK, June 29.—Franklin Basford, a marine artist and writer, committed suicide by shooting himself in the right side of the head on board his launch, the Larita, which was designed by him and was at anchor at the foot of Communipaw avenue, Jersey City. His act was due to despondency, the result of heavy money losses and the failure of an invention or discovery through which he had hoped to realize a fortune.

Just before his death he wrote a letter in which he said that he was ready for a trial today of the new motive power which he had discovered, but some one who wanted to prevent him from carrying out his plan had tampered with the engine of the Larita and undone the work of months. Mr. Basford was 40 years old. His pictures of the White Squadron have attracted attention, and he was an enthusiastic yachtsman, and was the yachting editor of Outing. He derived from his writings and paintings a large income, but most of his money was spent in experiments by which he hoped to develop great motive power by small expenditure.

THE SPY WHO TOOK ATLANTA.

To This Day No One Knows Whether It Was a Man or Woman.

[Chicago Chronicle:] In the spring of 1864 Atlanta was full of Johnston's officers and soldiers. An uneasy feeling prevailed in every circle, and it was feared that the rebels might make a forced march or a raid and surprise the city.

Still the people faced the situation courageously. They had passed through so many dangers that they were not easily frightened. The sudden boom of Sherman's big guns could then be heard forty miles away, but Atlanta maintained her usual serenity, outwardly, and gave no sign of her secret misgivings.

The theater was then on its last legs, but occasional performances were liberally patronized. One of the star attractions in a strolling company at that time was a pretty black-eyed woman, about 20 years old, who carried the town by storm.

This girl was a wonder. She was equally at home in a comedy, a tragedy, a farce, and a play. She could sing and dance, and when she took a male part in a play she was a howling success.

A better all-around artist had never visited Atlanta, and that was the general verdict. When she told her story it excited sympathy. She was a cruel and lovely girl, and her family had been murdered by a raiding party of Butler's troops. She had taken refuge in the Confederacy, and having no relatives or friends, she had decided to use her rare dramatic gifts and earn her own living. The story made the pretty actress very popular, and she was patronized in a social way by leading citizens. Young officers took her out driving, and generals and colonels showed her over the fortifications, which were then nearly finished. The crowd's curiosity about such matters charmed the military men, and it afforded them the greatest possible pleasure to answer her questions and explain every doubtful point.

Several weeks rolled by, and when her company disbanded the actress remained in Atlanta. She established herself at a popular boarding-house and told her friends that she needed rest before going on to the Richmond stage. She received a great deal of attention and was practically the belle of the army. The ladies were around the city, but the crowd's curiosity about such matters charmed the military men, and it afforded them the greatest possible pleasure to answer her questions and explain every doubtful point.

Suddenly the actress disappeared. The military men were nearly crazy because they could not trace her, but the ladies of the city did not seem to regret her departure—in fact, they hinted that she was a poor specimen of the race. The girl of June slipped by and there were no tidings from the missing star. Then came July and with it the beginning of the end.

At such a critical time people soon forget the favorite of the footlights, and at the end of forty days' shelling people were thinking of other important matters. The siege was over at last and the Federals marched in. One fine morning a western corps commander, with his staff, rode to the city and took a look at the fortifications. At his side was a small, dark-faced, black-eyed young man, who acted as his guide. The man's name should be. The girl of June slipped by and there were no tidings from the missing star. Then came July and with it the beginning of the end.

The Games

ALL ALONG THE LINE.

Should the strike of placer gold in the Randburg district prove to be as good as reported, the desert diggings may turn out to be a "poor man's camp" after all. The existence of placer gold in the gravel indicates that the quartz leads are now mere surface veins or blow outs.

A writer in the San Francisco Chronicle states that Henry Sienkiewicz, author of the celebrated historical novel, "Quo Vadis," was twenty years ago a member of the Polish colony which settled with Mme. Modjeska in Southern California, and made a failure of farming. Mr. Sienkiewicz was about two years on this coast, going from Southern California to the northern part of the State.

The suggestion that a large public building, suitable for conventions and exhibitions, be erected in Los Angeles is one that seems entitled to serious consideration. It might be practicable for the Merchants and Manufacturers' Chamber of Commerce and other public bodies to join hands and promote the project. A permanent exhibition of Southern California products could be maintained in such a building.

The business man who evades his civic duty by refusing to serve on a jury has no right to complain of non-enforcement of the laws. The excuse given by many of them, that they would not believe a Chinese under oath is a mere pretense and dangerously near a falsehood. Many of them have business dealings with Chinese merchants, and they do believe the mere unsworn word of a Chinaman. But perhaps they have taken their cue from the police, who declare that a Chinaman's word is not good, particularly when the Chinaman makes an accusation against an officer.

Time was when the walking delegate was a terrifying figure to the mechanic, the artisan, the merchant and the manufacturer. He bestrode the land like a Colossus—in his own estimation—and the public official trembled at his frown. Pretending to control innumerable votes and to hold the fate of candidates in the hollow of his hand—a hand not always above suspicion of venality—he bullied, gassed the public and the public's servants, and had the politician kow-towing before him. But the walking delegate in Los Angeles is a tattered scarecrow; the straw stuffing bulges through holes that have been punched in his hide, and the crows make nests in his hat. His latest bluff at the Fourth of July Committee has been called, and around the place where he stands are the three footprints of a dog. Vinette, Fiske & Co. may now carry out their threat to boycott Independence day and the American flag.

Los Angeles Conservatory.
The commencement concert and graduating exercises of the Los Angeles Conservatory of Music and Art took place last evening at the Blanchard-Fitzgerald Hall. The programme which was opened with an invocation by the Rev. J. C. Fletcher, was participated in by Mrs. A. M. Rawson, the Misses Cecil Jones, Sarah Gardner, Jennie D. Stevens, Alice Stribling, Esther Annie Denby, Annetta Hewitt, Myrtle Martin, Mabel E. Kelsey, and Master Earl B. Valentine. Diplomas were presented to the Misses Kelsey and Denby and the latter also received a gold medal.

Immanuel School Plenic.
Immanuel Church Sunday-school took its annual outing Monday, leaving the Terminal depot with some four hundred children. The first place of interest en route was the South Pasadena ostrich farm, at which place they arrived en masse and proceeded to investigate the ostriches. The management called the dogs and had the birds chased for the amusement of the children, the extraordinary movements of these imported freaks causing great merriment. The management gave to each child a souvenir card and a bag of candy.

Faust at Fiesta Park.
Another rehearsal was given last night at Fiesta Park, which proved that "Faust Up to Date" will be a good vehicle for fun on next Saturday evening. The programme is very complete, and introduces all new specialties, dances, ballads, songs and marches. The sale of seats opens Thursday.

He Wanted the Girl.
[Santa Fe News Mexican.] The solemn protest filed by Japan against the annexation of Hawaii by this country reminds us of the following little story: As a couple were about to be married, and the usual question as to any one objecting was asked, a young fellow in the crowd raised his voice in protest. Being asked the reason by the prober, he responded with a choking sob: "Because I want her myself."

Preparing to Star.
[Chicago Post.] They met at the seashore. "Do you intend to star next season?" he asked. "I hope to," she replied. "If I can work up a big enough scandal this summer I see no reason why I shouldn't."

Drs. M. L. Moore, E. R. Smith and Rogers, and Judge Varley will leave on Saturday evening for Klamath Lake, where they will spend a month hunting and fishing.

PASADENA EVENTS.
Rev. and Mrs. C. T. Douglass celebrated their twentieth wedding anniversary Monday evening at their home on Summit avenue. Over two hundred of their friends were present. The house was profusely decorated with flowers and the occasion was greatly enjoyed.

Miss Mabel Fralery and Harry M. Beecher were married Monday evening at the home of their friend, H. G. Polley. Only a few friends and relatives were present. The young couple will spend their honeymoon in Mexico. The marriage of Miss Mary A. Hill, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Hill of South Pasadena, and Rev. John Elliot Wishart of Inglewood, Pa., was solemnized Monday evening at the United Presbyterian Church, Rev. E. S. McKittick, D. D., officiating. After the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents in South Pasadena. Mr. and Mrs. Wishart will spend a few days in Santa Barbara, and will then go on to Inglewood, their future home.

HE CLINGS TO LIFE.
Assassin Look's Victim Has a Fair Chance of Recovery.

Quong Lun, the Chinese shot in the back by Ong Look Monday night, is now considered to have a fair chance for his life. Dr. Hagan yesterday intended to perform an operation which would locate the bullet and relieve the sufferer's distress. He changed his mind, however, after a consultation with Drs. Mathis, Brainard, Taggart, Hitt, Hagadorn and Fish, who agreed that the condition of the patient was not such as to warrant the operation.

It now transpires that Look, the would-be assassin of Lun, was accompanied on his murderous mission by his two business partners. Though they took no part in the assault, they are supposed to have been accessories before and after the commission of the crime. They are said to have encouraged Look to do the deed, and are known to have remained at his back until Lun fell under the deadly fire, supposedly dead.

One of these partners was arrested yesterday. His name is Pong Chi Sam. He was found in hiding in the room of his brother at the Natick House. Look and his other partner are still at large.

YENG ON TRIAL.
The Testimony for the Prosecution Stronger Than in the Lucy Case.

A jury was yesterday secured in the Ah Yeng lottery case, and part of the testimony for the prosecution taken. Officers Bradley and Fowler testified that they had visited Yeng's place, purchased tickets, and confiscated the paraphernalia used in dealing the game. Their testimony was in all respects similar, yet stronger, than that presented to the jury which declared Ah Yeng guilty a few days ago. After the examination of Bradley and Fowler the trial was postponed until today.

The liveliest public and official interest continues to center in the trial of these cases. The police believe that an honest and common-sense consideration of the character of the witnesses and their testimony, by business men summoned to act as jurors will be fruitful of good results.

Following are the names of the jurors: J. P. Stockdale, W. T. Harris, W. F. Bennett, J. R. Parker, C. D. Burnett, G. F. Upton, Lee Wilson, A. J. Secchitano, James Cummings, F. A. Hollenbeck, T. J. Turner, J. B. Hollingsworth.

McCORD'S STOCK FOR GOVERNOR HAS TAKEN A DROP.

The Republican Executive Committee Has Come Out Against the Appointment.

TELEGRAM TO THE PRESIDENT.

NO REPLY TO THE COMMUNICATION FROM WASHINGTON.

Canalgre Industry Booming—A Murderer Staked Out Till a Reward is Offered—An Overdose of Digitalis.

PHOENIX, June 28.—[Regular Correspondence.] Appointment McCord's gubernatorial stock dropped a notch last night. He now has the Territorial Republican Executive Committee against him. The Executive Committee from each county, with the exception of P. W. Wastmeyer of Gila county and S. G. Hubbell of Apache county, neither of whom could be reached, endorsed a discreet telegram to the President, offering to name a new man for Governor, in lieu of Col. McCord, who to date has not run the gamut of the Senate. Should the President accept the suggestion, a meeting of the Republican Central Committee of the Territory will be called, and a candidate agreed upon. The dispatch sent last night reads: "TUCSON (Ariz.) June 28, 1897. Hon. William McKinley, President, Washington, D. C.: The members of the Executive Committee of the Republican Territorial Central Committee, having accepted your judgment in the appointment of a Governor for this Territory, and having offered no opposition to his confirmation, feel that the situation has reached a crisis, and that decided action in the interests of the party should be taken. In a spirit of fairness to yourself and Mr. McCord, it is deemed advisable by leading Republicans to call a convention of representative Republicans, and that such convention take action in the premises, and determine whether it is advisable to recommend for your consideration a new man. Would this be agreeable to you, and would you recognize the action of said convention in the interests of the future welfare of Republicanism in this Territory."

"PIERCE EVANS,"
Acting Chairman.

"Attest:
"Lewis Williams, Cochise county.
"C. M. Funston, Coconino county.
"Frank Dysart, Graham county.
"R. J. Hartman, Mohave county.
"Charles R. Drake, Pima county.
"I. T. Stoddard, Yavapai county."
Letters were received from Committee men Bowman of Navajo county and Ingalls of Yuma county, subsequent filing the dispatch authorizing their signatures, making ten of the twelve committee men for the present move. The McCord forces were aroused last night as to the move made, and wired Dr. Ford, the chairman of the committee, who is in Kansas City, and who strongly favors McCord, requesting that he wire Pierce Evans, the acting chairman, that he had authority so to act. This Dr. Ford did, the message being received this morning by Mr. Evans. The President has not been heard from.

PRESIGNED FOR HIMSELF.

When Dan Donovan takes digitalis again, he will let his physician do the prescribing. He has been troubled with heart failure, and his physician has been administering digitalis in judicious doses. Yesterday one of his "spells" struck him, and pending the doctor's arrival he took digitalis of his own dosing. He took enough to kill two men, and made a job for the doctor with a stomach pump. He kept his heart going, however, and that was the principal object of the present move.

RAILROAD TO RANDESBURG.

A stock company has been incorporated here for the purpose of constructing a railroad from Kramer to Randesburg. The company is supplemental to the railroad proper, which was organized two months ago. The capital stock is $100,000, divided into 1000 shares. The incorporators are John W. Buckley of Rochester, N. Y.; Albert Smith of New York City; and A. Daugherty of Los Angeles. The places of business are at Phoenix and Los Angeles. The life of the incorporation is three years. No grading or bridges will be required for the new road. It is expected the road will be completed by August 15.

CANAIGRE CULTIVATION.

The new tannin plant, canaigre, will certainly furnish a big resource for Arizona. The company operating in the valley here is spreading out astonishingly. The pay rolls run up to $4000 per month. Progress in planting is rapid, at present thirty-six acres per day being set out. Three thousand acres are under cultivation. In addition hundreds of men are engaged in gathering the wild growth.

REWARDS FOR MURDERERS.

From Apache county comes a request to the Governor that for pure cash he make a cash. It seems that the constabulary of that county have a murderer staked out, and are waiting for the Governor to offer a reward, when they will bring him in. That isn't quite the way it is stated, but the facts are that strong, or nearly so. Assistant District Attorney Ruiz writes the Governor, requesting him to offer a reward for the arrest and conviction of John Gibson, the man who murdered Charles B. Thompson on the 8th inst. Gibson, he said, was in hiding somewhere in the vicinity of the Black River. Gov. Franklin is of the opinion that if the officers know that Gibson is out on the Black River, they should go out and get him, without any reward. This matter of rewards for murderers is all plain, any way. Rewards deplete the treasury when the murderers are caught, and catching them "avails" very little in Arizona. Hangings are unknown here and a murderer means at worst a few years at Yuma and a pardon.

PHOENIX BREVITIES.

Large shipments of cantaloupes are being made from the Fowler ranch, where sixty acres have been set out in melons.
Phoenix will not celebrate the Fourth of July. Old Sol furnishes all the fireworks wanted here.
The grain fields in the western part of the valley were in peril of fire a couple of days ago. Stubble caught from the thrasher at the Hawkins ranch, and spread alarmingly. Ordinarily fire fighting availed nothing. The canvas for covering the stack was then thoroughly wetted and dragged over the blaze with good results.
A month ago Tom Molloy and Sam Bagley bet their watches on the odds given a defeated favorite in the English Derby in 1886. They left the decision to the New York Clipper, and have both been made happy by the reply that there is no way of ascertaining the odds in question. Now each declares he is right, and has his watch back, too.

Last December a cattleman named McCann contracted to deliver a bunch of cattle and received $83 on account. Having failed to furnish the cattle or return the funds, he was arrested here. He explained to the court that he had been unable as yet to round up the cattle. The court gave him two weeks grace.

Sheriff Orme yesterday received another batch of nearly two hundred photographs collected by that fake concern, the Phoenix Portrait Company. One bunch is from Prescott and the others from all parts of the country. Maricopa is not only the richest county in the Territory, but it is enhancing in value the fastest. The assessment roll for 1897 shows in round figures $20,000, a gain of $1,000,000 over 1886. This county pays one-third of the Territorial taxes.

ARIZONA-AT-LARGE.

Justice Judia of Solomonville referred a free fight in his court a few days ago between two litigants. It was a cattle-stealing case, in which one Tom Bell, the defendant, acted as his own attorney. He emphasized his feelings toward Durkee, his opponent, with a hammer, and the court, who is pretty muscular himself, separated them. Then the court had his inking, fining the costs, some $40, to Durkee, and placing the damages done in contempt shown his honorable court by Bell in the sum of $35.

A NEW MORENCI.

Morenci, the homeliest town in Arizona before it burned down a week ago, will be rebuilt on a new site. Formerly the town squatted down among the cañons around the company's works. It will be rebuilt three quarters of a mile down the cañon in a much better location. Saloons and restaurants of a temporary character are in full blast there, with something more substantial promised. The company will utilize the old site for a concentrator.

Han Gee, Chinese prospector, met a hard fate a week or more ago. He belonged over in the Steeple Rock country, near the New Mexico line. One day his dog came to some partners the Chinaman had, and tried to draw them away with him. A day or two later the partners visited the Chinaman's cabin. He was seated in the doorway, a bowl of rice between his legs, dead. He had been shot. The cabin had been looted. The partners were arrested and discharged.

A shocking but comical occurrence happened on the Santa Fe, Prescott and Phoenix passenger train a day or two ago. Two babies were among the passengers. One was a cherub of 3 years, sweet and innocent-looking; the other a little fellow who cried very annoyingly. The cherub stood up on his seat and looked at the crying baby. Then he yelled "Shut up! You—". And what followed can only be expressed by dashes and exclamation points. The angel-faced baby swore like a pirate.

In expectation of the transfer of the railroads connecting Benson with Guaymas to the Southern Pacific, the railroad men are studying up the Southern Pacific rules. The Iron Mountain system will be used in Mexico. The change of management requires the sanction of the Mexican government. One item of the deal will be $100,000 worth of revenue stamps in effecting the transfer. Some mean things have been said of the government of Mexico, but to their credit be it said the Southern Pacific of Kentucky does not own them—not yet.

W. A. Clark, the Montana millionaire, has just returned to Jerome from Paris, where he has been for some time negotiating for the sale of the United Verde mines, situated at that place, for $60,000,000. The present output of these mines at the rate of $2,000,000 per year, and the outlook for the future is very bright.

A new steam shovel has been received by the Atlantic and Pacific Company, and will be used in the cinder pits near Flagstaff. The cinders will be used for ballasting the entire road. The shovel propels itself by its own power.

"Santa" Teresa, otherwise Señorita Teresa Urrea, has returned to Arizona from Texas. She was accompanied by a body guard, heavily armed. Her friends are afraid that the Mexican government will kidnap her, and she is constantly guarded. Her father and brother will go to work in the mines at Morenci, and she will continue to care for the sick, the lame, the halt and the blind. She has a wonderful hold on the Mexican people. She left El Paso very poor as to this world's goods, never having turned her opportunities to money-making.

40 CENTS ON THE DOLLAR.

The Stock of a Late Denver Firm Purchased by a Los Angeles Concern.

The Mammoth Shoe House, of 315-317 South Spring street, this city, has purchased the entire stock of the defunct Empire Shoe Company of Denver. For several weeks the fight has been hot for this immense stock. Mr. Oleovich, manager for the Mammoth, has made several trips to figure on this stock during the past two weeks. Several Denver firms wanted this stock and wanted it bad, but the enterprising Mammoth "got there" and the goods are now daily arriving and being unpacked as fast as the store's army of salespeople can work.

Additional help has been secured and the goods will be offered for sale commencing Thursday morning, July 1.

Of course the first to come will be first served, but the thousands of pairs of desirable shoes are enough to furnish nearly every man, woman and child in the city at bankrupt bargain prices.

These Goods will be on Sale all Day. Many other Bargains in this big store. Every purchase here saves you money. "The GREAT BARGAIN STORE."

CROSSING ACCIDENT.

Frightened Horse Overtakes a Buggy on Alameda Street.

Mrs. S. C. McLaughlin of No. 222 South Hays street and her son narrowly escaped death yesterday at the Alameda-street crossing of the Southern Pacific Railroad. Mother and son were returning from a shopping trip in the city to their home, in a buggy, and when nearing the railroad crossing saw an engine backing up. The bell at the crossing, they allege, did not ring, nor did the engineer ring the bell on the locomotive. The buggy was stopped until the engine passed, and then young McLaughlin started his horse ahead. He had just cleared the first track, and his horse was on the second one when he discovered the locomotive rapidly coming toward him. No bell was sounded, the McLaughlins say, and the engine was almost upon the buggy before they noticed it. The horse became frightened and tried to turn, cramping the buggy and overturning it, both mother and son being caught in the vehicle. The frightened animal dragged the buggy quite a distance, and was caught by the engineer, they having stopped the engine and run to the rescue. Mrs. McLaughlin had her right leg severely bruised and sprained, but the son escaped all injury. The railroad men say they were "exercising" an engine that just came out of the shops, and that they were nowhere near the buggy when the horse took fright and halted, overturning the buggy at a curbstone on the street. Mrs. McLaughlin has put in a claim for damages and doctor's bill.

NON-UNION BANDS.

FOURTH OF JULY COMMITTEE DECLINES TO BE HELD UP.

Ten Dollars for Tooting a Horn Ninety Minutes Was the Demand. Programme of the Celebration Completed.

The Fourth of July Committee has perfected the following literary and musical programme for the exercises in Simpson Tabernacle, on Monday, July 5:

Opening remarks by president of the day, Gov. John L. Beveridge.

Prayer—Rev. Alfred S. Clark, rector of Christ Church.

Reading Declaration of Independence—F. W. Allender.

Song, "Star-Spangled Banner"—Mrs. Jessie Padgham Conant.

Address—Atty-Gen. W. F. Fitzgerald, orator of the day.

At 8 p.m.—Opening remarks—Judge M. T. Allen, president of the evening.

Selection—By the orchestra.

Solo—Mrs. Minnie Hance Owens.

Reading, "Liberty Bell"—Miss Angela Anderson.

Baritone solo, "The Grenadiers"—Prof. C. S. Cornell.

"The Flag Without a Stain"—Amphion Quartette, H. D. Willard, G. W. Ragland W. L. Frew and C. L. Wilde.

Selection—Orchestra.

Accompanist, Miss Mary L. O'Donoghue.

The Goddess of Liberty will be represented in the person of Mrs. Ida E. Bishop, and the forty-eight States by as many little girls, to be selected by the committee. The sashes, and all decorations which may be included in the make-up of the parade and the girls, furnished by the committee, so that no extra expense will have to be met by the parents of the children who participate. In addition to the flags and sashes, the committee will present each child with a souvenir of the fiftieth celebration of Independence day in California.

The question of union and non-union music was a bone of contention, and occupied the time of the committee for a full hour, the result being reached that five non-union bands were contracted with at a sum total of half what the union demanded, to-wit: $6 per man for the parade and $4 per man for a short concert in the evening. In making the contracts for music the committee called on bids, and closed them with the lowest bidders.

The Fourth of July Committee could not see its way clear to pay $10 per man for the music for the parade, and when the same could be procured for less money.

The details of the street parade will be completed on Friday evening, July 2. All division marshals are requested to meet with Grand Marshal Covarrubias on Thursday evening at Fourth of July headquarters to receive instructions, assignments, etc. A special feature of the street pageant will be a display of antiques, made up of the old volunteer fire department, the first Los Angeles Water Company and other striking features of the pueblo days.

There will be a meeting of the committee every evening this week, and the general public is invited to meet with and aid the committee in completing the details of the celebration.

LETTERS TO THE TIMES.

Water Power and Electricity.
LOS ANGELES, June 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There seems to be no end of schemes for supplying Los Angeles and Southern California with electrical power from our mountain streams, but we have heard nothing, or next to nothing, lately of the Kern River project, which gave promise of a supply adequate for present and all future possible demands. The Santa Ana and San Gabriel rivers are good enough as far as they go, but this is a big city and growing bigger every day, while the uses for electricity are rapidly multiplying on every hand. Nothing would help Los Angeles, so much as a well-rounded assurance of an adequate supply of electrical power. I am one of those who have closely watched the trend of affairs in the electrical field (and who has not?) and expect soon to see every train in Southern California run by electricity, and the San Pedro Harbor dredged by electricity—all generated by water power.

Gen. Charles F. Forman is credited in a five-line squib in an evening sheet with the statement that the "Kern River Company is getting down to business." This is good news as far as it goes, but I believe the columns of The Times are always open to reliable information on subjects of importance to the general public. Let us here from Gen. Forman, Manager, Eddy or Engineer Hawgood on this interesting subject.

San Gabriel Range.

LOS ANGELES, June 28.—[To the Editor of The Times:] There is much confusion in the public mind concerning the names and elevations of the various peaks north of Pasadena, the range being often called the Sierra Madre, and Mt. Lowe often considered the highest peak, whereas the recently published map of the United States Geological Survey shows that the range is the San Gabriel, while there are several peaks higher than Mt. Lowe.

The highest point is San Gabriel Peak, 6182 feet above the sea level, behind Mt. Lowe and not visible from Pasadena. Next comes Mt. Alta, 5920, closely followed by Mt. Wilson, 5886; while Mt. Lowe is but 5660 feet high.

The several hotels and camps are: Mt. Wilson Park, 5850; Martin's camp, 5500; Alpine Tavern, 4550 and Echo Mountain Hotel, 3219. G. B. G.

LIBRARY TRAINING.

TWO CLASSES ORGANIZED IN THE PUBLIC LIBRARY.

Practical Courses of Instruction for Applicants of a Certificate Degree of Efficiency—Los Angeles Pioneer.

Two training classes have been organized in connection with the Public Library under the direction of Mrs. H. C. Wadleigh, the new librarian. This division of the young ladies who passed the preliminary examination into two classes was necessary on account of the large number of successful applicants and the high grade of scholarship evinced, several of whom are receiving collegiate training at Wellesley and Vassar.

One class comprising six applicants, Joseph B. Creighton, Sarah M. Jacobus, Bertha Kane, Anna Long, Dora C. Mason and Frances Nesbit, will begin work tomorrow and will continue at work for three months for six hours a day. This class is prepared for advanced work and expects to be ready for final examination at the end of its term. The second class will include six other applicants, Lillian C. Barnes, Belle Smith, Ethelwyn H. Fagge, Stella C. Flynn, Ella T. Morgan and Maud T. Wheeldon. Its term will begin on August 15, and will last six months with three hours' work each day.

The training class of the Los Angeles Public Library, instituted in November, 1891, was the first public library class organized for the purpose of training pupils in the rudiments of library science. The experiment was the result of a conviction that the best interests of a library depend in a great measure on a non-partisan method of providing service and that to make all appointments solely on a basis of individual merit is the only means of obtaining an efficient staff. The fact that the Public Library of this city was the pioneer in the inauguration of training classes is reason for much pride, as is the fact that the plan has since been adopted by libraries of such institutions as Pratt Institute of Brooklyn, Drexel Institute of Philadelphia, Armour Institute of Chicago and the Summer School of Amherst College.

Application for admission to the training classes, which are restricted to six in number, may be made at any time, but the entrance examinations are held only at intervals of three months. The examination is conducted by the Committee of Attendants of the board of directors of the Public Library and is designed to determine whether by previous education and natural adaptability the qualifications of applicants are sufficient to warrant the undertaking of library work.

After admission each student serves as an understudy to the heads of the various departments of the library, in which lessons in comparative methods are given, to be followed by a term of practical application.

Instruction is given in round handwriting, typewriting, and the use of library printing as required for library purposes. The studies also embrace the selection of books, classification, indexing and reference work, and all the methods of the accession department, from the purchase of a book to its ultimate shelving. After such a course of practical work, a technical examination, and a thesis upon some approved topic of library economy is prescribed. Seventy per cent of the total number of credits entitles the holder to a certificate, rank on the substitute list, and the privilege of a second course. Eighty-five per cent entitles the holder to all the privileges of the former percentage, and six months half-day service at the rate of $10 per month, on condition that the student take the second course.

The second course includes practical instruction in cataloging and general library administration, to be followed by an examination. No promise of permanent employment in the public library is held out to any applicant, but, on the other hand, no regular appointments to the library staff are made except from the ranks of training-class graduates.

The entire work of the members of the training class is in charge of the Committee on Attendants, to whom Mrs. Wadleigh, the librarian, is expected to report as to the efficiency and general deportment of the students. Punctuality, fitness for library service and general health are also important items on the making of records.

Other works of an instructive character will probably be inaugurated before long by Mrs. Wadleigh for the benefit of the entire library staff.
